The hike to Zeppelinhöhe begins at the Hochplattenbahn car park. After about 1 km, the path to Hochplatte branches off to the left, but we continue straight on in the direction of Rachl-Alm and cross the Tennbodenbach. The path initially leads us mostly through the forest and crosses the Hochplattenbahn route. Where we emerge from the forest, a sign points us to the right in the direction of Zeppelinhöhe. The path winds its way through the forest down to the so-called upper Torgraben. We cross a mountain stream that does not usually carry a lot of water and in a few minutes we reach Zeppelinhöhe, where a memorial stone commemorates the inventor of the Zeppelin. A bench invites you to linger and the view opens up in front of us to Grassau, Marquartstein, the Achenal, Kendlmühlfilzen and as far as Lake Chiemsee. We walk back the short distance and then keep to the right. After a few meters, the path winds its way down to the Torgraben in the direction of the Hochplattenbahn (valley station) and we follow the signs to the valley station, which we reach by walking slightly uphill past the fairytale park. Refreshment options: Rachl Alm (small detour), Café Jägerwinkl (near the fairytale park)
