The city itself is worth a trip and offers many opportunities to strengthen yourself and relax for a few minutes, because the return trip is not "free" either. The demanding tour requires fitness. With almost 90 km and approx. 1,000 m difference in altitude, it is one of the more difficult trips. The rise towards Anger is a sign of what awaits you. From Piding to Bad Reichenhall and on to the ST2101 requires some orientation skills. From Bad Reichenhall to Inzell we move in the mountains. One should not forget that. This becomes clear from the long climbs up to the "Mauthäusl" and from Weißbach up to the "Cafe Zwing". A last ascent is in the way with the ascent to Knappenfeld, before it's relaxed back to Waging. One has to take into account the fact that there are not so many secondary roads in the mountains. Therefore, the route sometimes leads on federal and state roads.
